

Work Health and Safety Compliance Check

Health & Safety Laws Have Changed

On 1st January 2012 New South Wales changed Occupational Health & Safety laws (now referred to as the Work Health & Safety (WHS) Act & Regulation 2011).

The changes include:

- Broadening the responsibility for all workers (e.g. volunteers, contractors, labour hire etc), not just your direct employees,
- Changing the methods of consultation and rights of employee representatives,
- Additional responsibilities for 'officers' of the company, including the need to confirm health & safety is in place (e.g. auditing).

Are you compliant with current WHS laws?
